

OLD COUPLE OLD SHIP

Written by

Kaitlin A. Meaney

October 2018

INT. SHIP RENTAL TERMINAL.

A well dressed married couple walks up to the terminal. DIANNE is younger while BOB is older. DIANNE is in a huff after being in line for so long.

BOB scrolls through the terminal as the woman sighs and crosses her arms.

DIANNE

Hmph. You'd think these people could do without taking their time.
That line took forever.

He doesn't look at her. He's been through this a million times before.

BOB

Everyone must have their turn,
dear.

Shakes her head.

DIANNE

Well I never...

Bob touches her arm to get her attention. He points at the screen.

BOB

How about this one?

Looks at the ship he's pointing at.

DIANNE

Ew, that's hideous. It looks so old... My grandfather would have used that.

She turns away.

BOB

It's the cheapest one here...

He scrolls around finding the other ships have been taken.

BOB (CONT'D)

It seems like it's the only one they have left.

DIANNE rounds back.

DIANNE

You can't be serious.

BOB
I'm afraid we must take it, dear.

He selects the ship and pays.

She fans herself with a folded fan.

INT. INSIDE THE SHIP.

The ship rattles and rumbles as they travel due to its age.

DIANNE'S arms are crossed and she's annoyed. She mutters.

DIANNE
And to think I married you for your money...

Turns to her suddenly.

BOB
I thought you married me because you loved me!

She covers her mouth unaware she spoke those words.

DIANNE
Did I say that out loud?